Portam Aperimus Ad Vitam

For our class motto, portam aperimus ad vitam, we have reached back to classical antiquity and its language. Yet we have not sold our birthright as modern Americans in selecting this motto. The language is merely symbolic of the ageless belief here expressed, we open the door to life. As we approach the opening doors of the future, the lessons of today will lead and guide us onward. As modern Americans we lift heads high and go forth to conquer.

Symbolic of this conquering spirit is our interpretive motto page. Here with the language of the past on our lips and the hope of the future in our hearts, we have illustrated the thought of our motto.

Perhaps this intermingling of old and new illustrates the age in which we live — a period of transition. To us, the linking generation, falls the task of uniting old and new in a changing world. No longer, however, are our horizons limited; the world, the universe, is ours.

Thus, mindful of the traditions of the past, the transience of the present, and the uncertainty of the future, we present the Boulder of 1954 as evidence of our changing times, our life as we know it.

THE 1954

THE PURPOSE of the Boulder of 1954 is to record the deeds of us who, for the past four years, have embodied the spirit of Fitchburg High School. In the years to come this yearbook will keep alive the memories gathered during our undergraduate days. The future years will bring new faces and changes to this school scene, but there will be this record of the friends we knew, the things we did, and the memories that shall always be dear to us.

DEDICATION

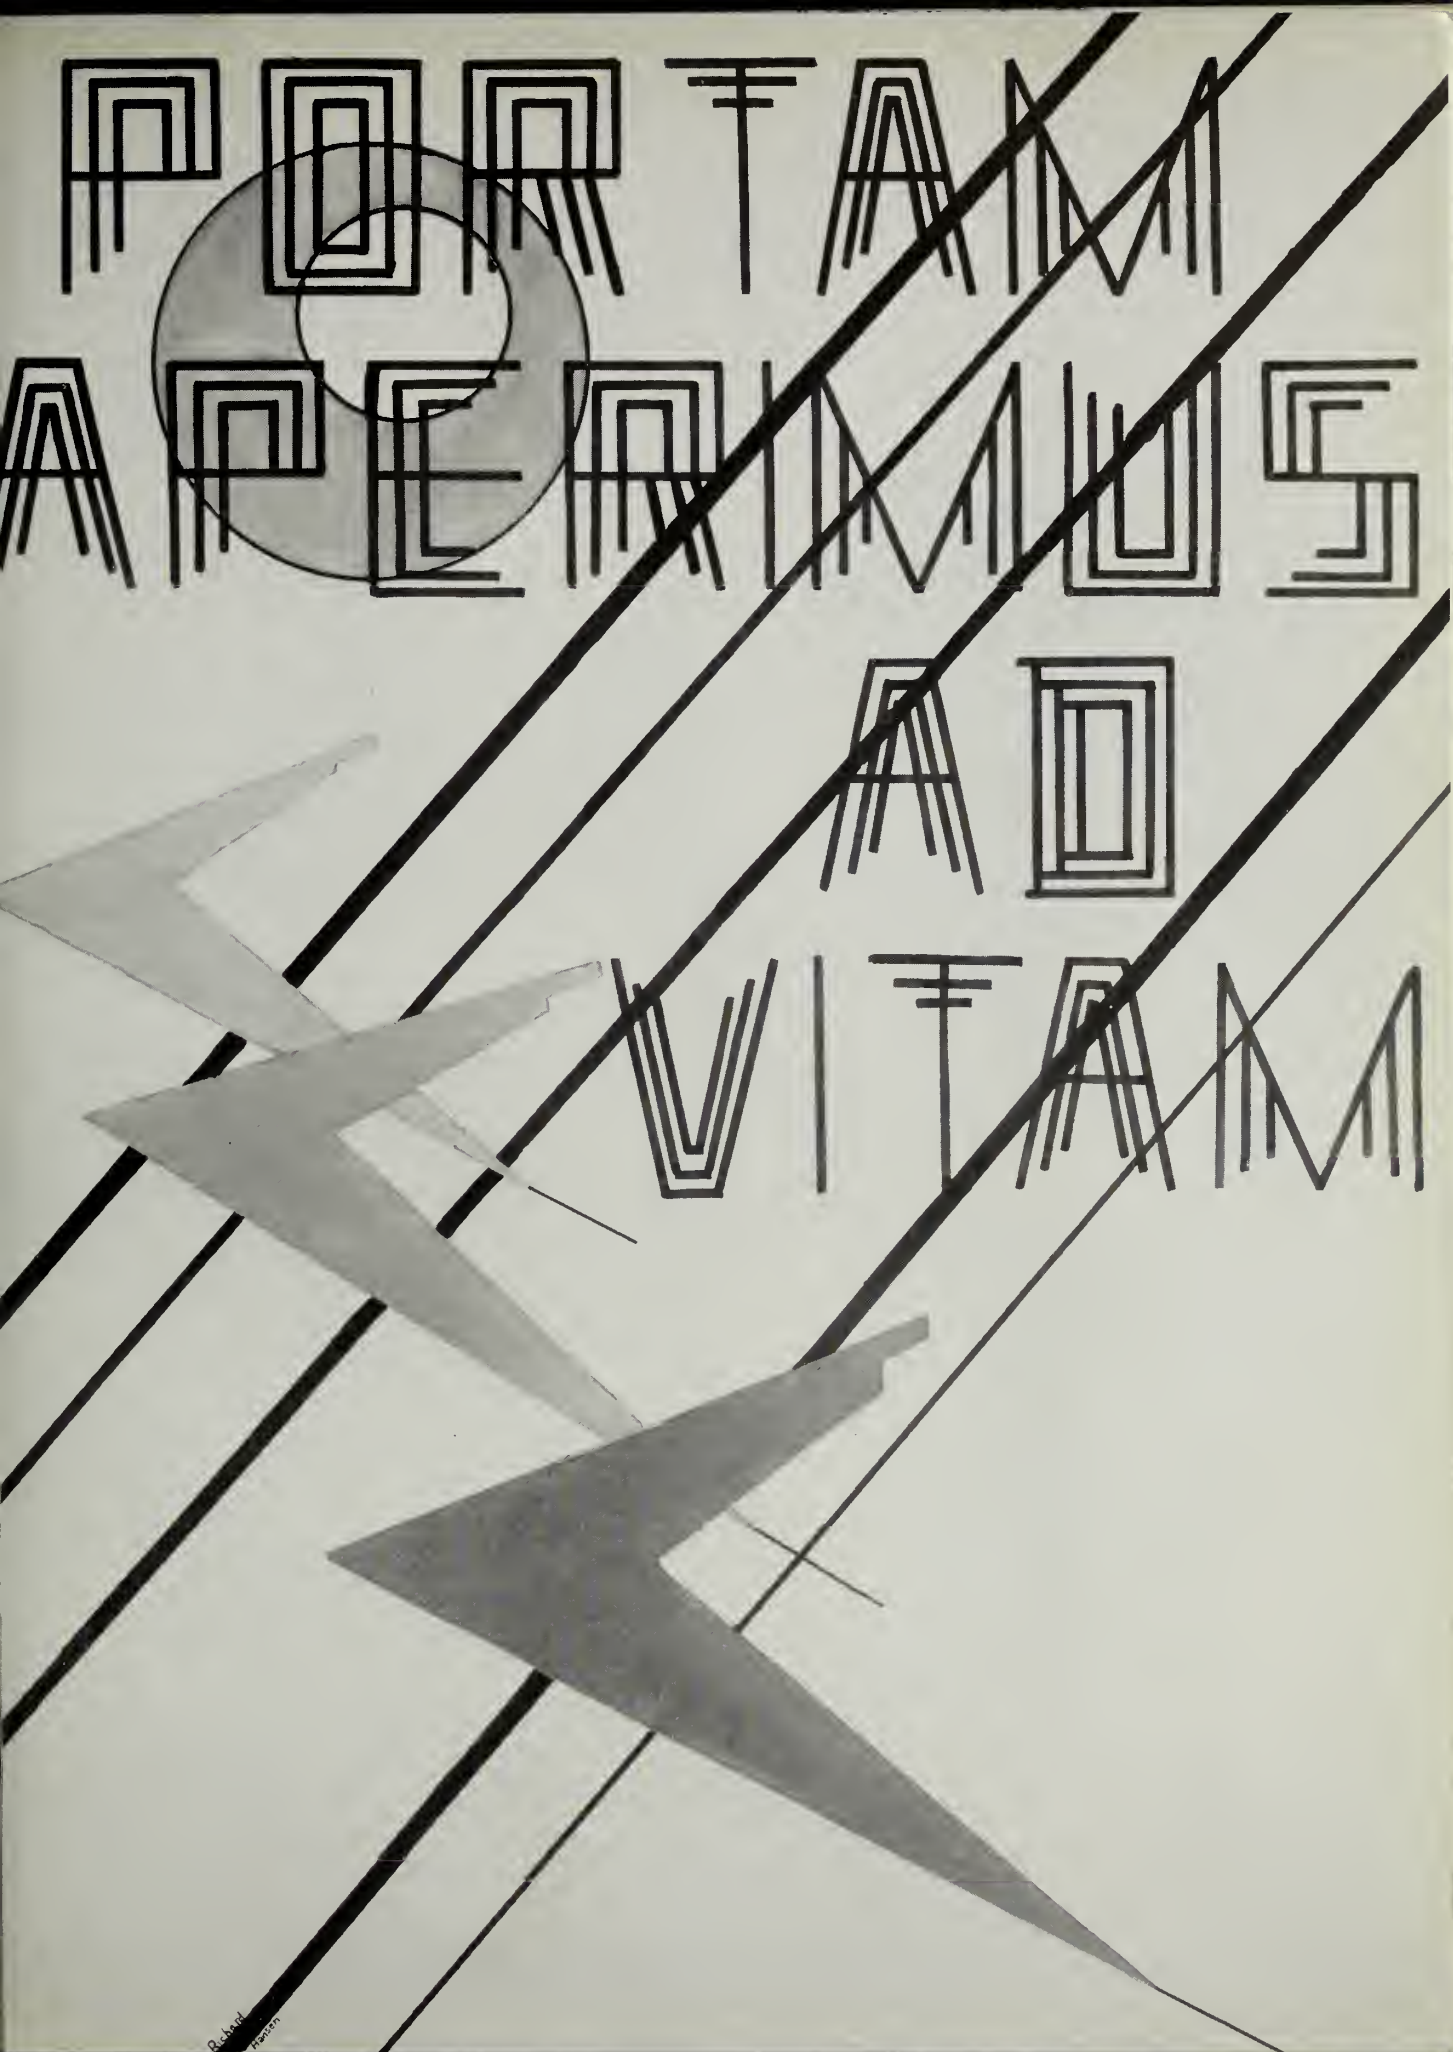

to

LEO THOMAS CARNEY

How transient are the golden years,
Each day imbued with memories,
Each memory intrinsically woven
With school and class, and thus with you.

Who dares enumerate the intangible gifts
Of a person rich in love?
Stereotyped words — patience, kindness,
Integrity — do not suffice.

Each member of our class will carry an image
Of you as helper, guide, and friend
As long as memories endure.
And beyond memories, our gratitude
Finds enduring expression in this book
We dedicate to you in all humility.

CLASS OFFICERS

AUGUST JOSEPH SARDINHA, JR.

Great in council, glorious in the field

Gus — president of our class — leader — serious when he has to be — fun, galore when he doesn't have to be — pulls a great "punchy" routine — tops in sportsmanship — great athlete — modest — quiet — sincere — loves spicy food and loud, loud shirts — copyright greeting of, "Hey Man!" — always friendly to everyone — rugged little man — makes many a girl's heart flutter — goes mad over jazz albums — pet peeve is lack of spirit — takes great pride in his knowledge of cars — we take great pride in Gus.

Football 2, 3, 4; Jr.-Sr. Relay 3, 4; Track 2, 3, 4; Dramatic Club 3, 4; Home Room Representative 2; Student Council 2; Class Officer 3, 4; Senior Play Cast; Operetta 4.

PATRICIA ANN LUNDBERG

She's pretty to walk with: and witty to talk with

Patti — our class secretary — extremely attractive blonde hair and blue eyes — has a wonderful sense of humor — hard worker — name is always found on the honor roll — is seen at all school events — rather quiet — likes all sports especially football and basketball — loves to dance — dynamic personality — plans include college.

The evening air was cool and peaceful, yet there was an element of uncertainty, of restlessness hovering above the ancient Greek city. Only the birds, soaring nonchalantly in the clear, cloudless sky, were able to detect the origin of this film of anxiety — a regal, white marble temple majestically situated upon the Acropolis, overlooking the entire city. Within this palatial structure, the beautiful goddess Athena, daughter of the almighty Zeus, was strolling about beneath the stately Doric columns. Her classical features, usually calm and impassive, showed signs of unrest. Something was on her mind . . .

Early that morning, Athena had called the nine graceful and learned Muses to her side. Before they could occupy the position of the gods' cultural advisors, they had to prove their worth. That was the reason Athena had summoned them. After careful consideration, she had finally decided that they were to be the cultural advisors of the Class of 1954 at Fitchburg High School! Since there was such a variety of personalities, abilities, and hidden talents in that class, the Muses would be tested to the fullest extent!

Fully realizing that everything depended on the success of their wards, the Class of '54, the Muses solemnly accepted their Queen's plan. They were determined that their class should rank among the most successful in the history of Fitchburg High.

And so it was that the nine Muses established their vantage point atop the great granite rise, Rollstone Hill. Upon their arrival, they set to work at once, eager to meet this unusual class!

The first few months of school were rather hectic. Like all their predecessors, the Class of '54 had the usual difficulties in the beginning. Thalia, gay muse of comedy, was constantly on the alert, watching for "notes" from the "fifth" floor or from teachers who didn't exist. The Class learned very quickly, however. Why, in record time, almost everyone had developed an uncanny respect for the bell system, especially the tardy bell. Too many unsuspecting victims paid the price of an admit slip the hard way . . .

The lessons soon became routine, and everything seemed to be progressing smoothly. Time flew by. Then an event took place which made the young Class of '54 sadder and wiser . . . report cards! Melpomene, muse of tragedy, was inclemently harsh, determined to make the Class understand the significance of their education. As a result, everyone worked harder, but Melpomene was hard to please.

Of course, just as in anything else, there were light and lively moments, too. Terpsichore, muse of dancing, and Thalia, muse of comedy, helped to make the annual Variety Review one of the gayest presentations of the year, a program long to be remembered.

The Boulder 1954

Almost before anyone knew it, the first year had come to a close. One quarter of their task was finished, and the nine Muses were pleased with the results.

The second year was also one of excitement. Since more students were added to the original list, however, the Muses had an extra amount of work to do. Everyone worked hard at everything — lessons and extra-curricular activities.

In that year, Polyhymnia, muse of eloquence, took charge of the Debating Club. Her sister, Euterpe, helped the song-birds with the chorus work. The Class of '54 certainly was promising! Why, as sophomores, they received honorable mention for fine acting in the annual competitive plays.

Once again, time slipped by unnoticed, until one beautiful September day, the Class of '54 became a group of lively juniors, real upperclassmen! Now they were able to elect class officers and an advisor to help the Muses with their task. Terpsichore worked twice as hard to make all the class dances a success. Engaging the aid of Erato, muse of live songs and romance, the Junior Prom, "The Land of Wishes," was one of the most successful events of the year. Even at the Junior-Senior Relay, the only dark spot in the entire year, spirits were high.

Summer vacation brought to a temporary halt all the class activity. Everyone was happy and tired at the end of the year. Thanks to the Muses, the Class of '54 had shown they had plenty of what it takes to be a success. The vacation was an opportunity to store up energy for the most glorious adventure of them all . . . the life of a Senior!

In September, everyone came back, ready and alert, "rarin' to go!" Under the expert guidance of Thalia, Euterpe, and Terpsichore, the year started off successfully with a senior reception for the faculty and a record dance. Thanks to Urania, muse of astronomy, there wasn't a cloud on the horizon!

Aside from all the fun and frolic, however, the seniors immediately settled down to their books, realizing that there were college entrance exams and achievement tests waiting for them. This was the year that many serious decisions had to be made. Caliope, muse of rhetoric, was kept busy more than her share of time, trying to prepare college people for their exams in English, French, or Latin. Clio, muse of history, had a prodigious amount of work in straightening out the places and dates of American history. More than one lamp burned the midnight oils during this season . . .

After these exams had come and gone, the Class of '54 turned to the lighter side of life once more. The Senior Play, "You Can't Take It With You," was next on the busy schedule. Father Time seemed jet-propelled at this point! Before anyone realized it, the trip to Washington was at hand, followed by the gala Senior Prom. "A Holiday in Rio." Already graduation was upon them!

On that all-important evening which marked the culmination of four years' hard work, the nine Muses sat back in their seats in the front row and surveyed their handiwork. The Class Speaker had already spoken, and the much-desired diplomas were being given out. As each person walked serenely up to the platform, face aglow with pride and enthusiasm, the Muses knew that they had succeeded in their assignment. Their wards were ready to embrace the future with open arms; they had opened the doorway to life!

SENIOR CLASS SONG — 1954

Words by
DAVID HOCHBERG

Music by
ANNE HENRECKSON

Moderato

As we leave the halls of Fitch-burg High And the door to life swings wide,

We'll walk the path with head held high And our hearts will swell with pride,

Our minds will fill with mem-o-ries, Our eyes will fill with tears,

As we think of our great vic-to-ries Of our four short glo-rious years,

Oh Fitch-burg High that we've loved so true; Oh, be-lov-ed Red and Gray,

We sing our Fi-nal praise to you. "We'll cherish your name for 'aye!"

We've studied hard, we've studied long,
We've conquered all we've met.
And now we sing our parting song
With life's plans firmly set.

Assets and Liabilities

As we, the Class of 1954, end our career as a unit of Fitchburg High School, we wish to make a statement of our assets and liabilities to our successors. Our assets we do not list as monetary figures; rather, we list them as personalities, for we are individuals banded together in common loyalty to our school. With this preamble, we present this statement of our assets and liabilities.

Room 406 — Mr. Kenney

JUNIOR CLASS OFFICERS

George Thomas, Ruth Anderson, Jane Longsjø, David Holman

HIGH SCHOOL CLERICAL STAFF

Left to right—Lou E. Brigham, Secretary; Margaret A. Lennon, Phyllis E. Thibault, Office Assistants

Flash! Flash! Flash! Flash!

Seniors eligible for a Gold F award at the end of the first semester include:

Carol Anderson	June Davis	Pauline Sjoberg
Helen Blood	Dolores Cohen	Barbara Smith
Mabel Bowen	Koula Georgalis	Janice Wheeler
Elizabeth Chalmers	Alwin Johnston, Jr.	Richard Wiinikainen

Have you noticed how we've grown? — This was the all important question this week as seniors were measured for caps and gowns. However, faces became a little sadder, as all realized that soon graduation day would be upon us.

A flash came down today from 312 — our own Herbert P. Sullivan and company are ready to embark for Washington. Herewith a warning is given to New York, Philadelphia and all points between and beyond. May 1 through 7 is the danger week. F. H. S. is coming! Mr. Carl Perkins will assist Mr. Sullivan in keeping our seniors out of mischief.

Fascinating, mirthful, exciting, tremendous — these are just a few of the exclamations describing our class play, "You Can't Take It With You" presented Friday, April 23, 1954. Our sparkling classmates certainly gave a magnificent performance!

Our Senior Prom, scheduled for June 11, should be a gala affair. The art committee is busy preparing decorations for "A Holiday in Rio." We are confident that it will be another Senior success.

will be placed in our store window sometime in May. Every Senior's name will appear on the clock dial. The clock will be wound so it will stop during the day of graduation. The minute hand will stop at a senior girl's name and she will receive a fine high-grade bracelet watch. The hour hand will stop at a senior boy's name and he will receive a good strap watch. If the winner already has a watch and it was purchased here in 1954, she or he may have $100 in cash instead of a watch.
